Imagine yourself... Living with, and like, the French!

You recently attended the Study Abroad Fair at your university and met with fellow students and former AUCP program participants.

Imagine yourself, like them, studying French in the south of France!

The AUCP proposes two advanced French immersion programs for you to choose from. A liberal arts program in Aix and an international relations program in Marseille. A six-week intensive summer program, for intermediate to advanced levels, is also available. All programs combine carefully conceived course offerings with guided experiential learning activities, such as Community Service, Language Partner, and Individual Placement Immersion Homestay.

"Placement in a host family is one of the best ways to improve the language. A host family provides direct access to the community and culture, but also allows another place to practice your French!"
Chasty Ayson, Mills College - AUCP Spring 2010

Designed for learning both inside and outside the classroom, the AUCP takes full advantage of local resources for a complete international educational experience.

"The AUCP campus is intimate and very beautiful. I felt comfortable in the classrooms and also challenged. I definitely feel confident speaking French now, and couldn't have achieved this goal without the high level of AUCP instruction. I am grateful to have not just learned French, but I have forged great friendships".

Sara Lemesh, Rice University – AUCP Summer 2010.

The Aix Program focuses upon French language and literature, contemporary issues, cinema, art history, studio art, and cross cultural communication. On-site course work is supplemented by optional French university direct enrollment. (Fall, Spring and Full-year options)

The Marseille program focuses upon Middle East political developments, French and Arabic language and civilization, immigrant identities, and cross-cultural, inter-religious mediation. Course work in Marseille is supplemented by one-week of on-site study in Fez, Morocco. (Fall, Spring and Full-year options)

Summer in Provence is a six-week intensive French language program in Aix. Courses include emphasis on intercultural communication, as well as weekly excursions and four full-day field trips.
